THREE WELL-KNOWN CITIZENS ARE DEAD

H. C. Springate, Marion Haynes and Mike O'Donoghue Pass Away at Their Old Homes in Breckinridge County.

WERE HELP TO THEIR PEOPLE

H. C. Springate, Marion Haynes and Mike O'Donoghue, three old and reliable citizens of this county, died at their homes last week. Death came to Mr. Springate Tuesday, March 2, as a result of complication of diseases. He was born in Hancock county and was seventy-two years old. Mr. Springate leaves his wife, one son, B. H. Springate, and one daughter, Mrs. C. R. Carlton. The funeral was conducted by Mr. Jas. Mitcham and the interment took place in the family burying ground. Mrs. Carlton and son, Charles Lee, came from Louisville, to attend the services.

Mike O'Donoghue died Saturday, at his home near Hardinsburg, at the age of seventy-six years. His death was due to pneumonia. Mr. O'Donoghue was born in Ireland in the County of Cork, where the castle containing the Blarney Stone was built in 1446. He was a man of many original characteristics and was very popular. The funeral was held Monday when high mass was said by Father Norman. Thos. O'Donnough, of near Hardinsburg, survives his father.

Marion Haynes died Tuesday at his home on the Custer road.

After nearly eight years of patient suffering from rheumatism, Mrs. Amanda Hendrick quietly passed away Sunday morning, February 28, 1915. Mrs. Hendrick was the wife of Christopher Hendrick, who only preceded her to the grave one month ago.

Mrs. Hendrick was a Miss Ball before marriage, the daughter of Lewis Ball, one of the pioneer settlers of Breckinridge county. She is survived by three daughters and two sons. They are: Mrs. J. W. Jarboe, Mrs. Elmer Downs, Mrs. Sam Marshall and Mason and Paul Hendrick, and also the following brothers and sisters: Nelson, John and Glad Ball, Mrs. Sallie Miller, Mrs. Mary Miller, Mrs. Matt Shrewsbury and Mrs. Lewis Ball.

West Point Physician and Daughter Bitten.

Dr. J. V. Prewitt, of West Point, and his daughter, Miss Mildred Prewitt, are at Sts. Mary and Elizabeth Hospital suffering with severe lacerations about the body and face inflicted by a bulldog, the property of the physician. Dr. D. S. Roberts, of West Point, who accompanied them to this city last night, stated that he did not know whether the animal was afflicted with rabies or not, but that developments would be watched closely and at the slightest indication of infection the couple would be hurried to the State Pasteur Institute at Bowling Green.

Mrs. Prewitt was entering her front gate when the dog leaped at her throat. Before she could protect herself she had been knocked to the ground and severely bitten. Her father, hearing her screams, rushed out and began fighting the animal. He was also severely bitten before Goldman King, agent for the I. C. railroad, attracted by their cries had run to their assistance and beat the animal off.

Dr. Prewitt is a leading physician of West Point. Miss Prewitt is twenty-one years of age and a recent graduate of Nazareth Academy.—Louisville Post.

"BLARNEY STONE"

Will Be Kissed Next Wednesday—Many Here Like to Celebrate St. Patrick's Day.

Those who should like to go to Ireland next Wednesday to kiss the "Blarney Stone," will remain content in "Old Sport" by wearing a shamrock or a little white pipe with a green stem. St. Patrick's Day is always popular here, while there are not many Irish citizens there are those of Irish descent who like to honor the day. And all their American friends join in the spirit of this holiday with them. No social entertainments have yet been planned for the day, but Cloverport never forgets St. Patrick.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Class at C. H. S. Learns the Art of Cooking and Cleaning Up As You Go.

A representative of The Breckenridge News was invited last Tuesday afternoon to visit the Domestic Science Class of the Cloverport High School and to see the increase of its equipment in the last year. The class is to be congratulated on the recent installments made. A long kitchen table, containing drawers for cooking utensils, dishes and kitchen linens, were bought this year. Visions of a separate apartment for cooking and serving have already been expressed, and if the School Board gets able, this addition will be added by the time the little girls are old enough to take up this science.

Miss Leonora McGavock, teacher of the class, does not only teach cooking, but sees that the girls learn the art of cleaning up as they go. This keeps the kitchen orderly and attractive.

A splendid recipe was tried Tuesday afternoon which was as follows:

Two cups baked beans, two slices onion, two cups water, two cups tomatoes. Cook all ten minutes, press through a strainer, bind with two tablespoonsful butter, three tablespoonsful flour, season with salt, pepper, celery salt and paprika. Serve with toasted crackers.

Layman Strong In Grayson.

In commenting on the announcement of Judge Layman, the Leitchfield Gazette says:

"Judge Layman's record as Commonwealth's Attorney and as Circuit Judge is so commendable that during his career as a public official even his political enemies have never charged him with being other than an honest conscientious and upright citizen and official. During his short term as Circuit Judge to fill out an unexpired term he has shown his superior ability as a Judge and of his decisions only two in part have been reversed by the Court of Appeals. The sessions of the Grayson Circuit Court are now noted for the promptness with which the business before the court is disposed of and the uniform courtesy shown all who come before the court."

TOM RHEA COMES OUT FOR AUDITOR

Seeks Nomination on "Strong and Worthy" Democratic Ticket.

RECORD AS ASSESSING OFFICER

is Reviewed in Refuting Reckless Charges of Favoritism Toward Big Corporate Interests Made by Owale Stanley—Will Not Enter Into Controversy With His Detractor—Points With Pride to Manner in Which Present Administration of Treasurer's Office Has Overcome Deficit Inherited From Republican Predecessor.

Thomas S. Rhea of Logan county, present state treasurer of Kentucky and late chairman of the Democratic state campaign committee, today makes announcement of his candidacy for his party's nomination, in the August primary election, for the office of auditor of public accounts. In entering the race Mr. Rhea presents to the voters a brief review of his course as a member of the state board of valuation and assessment, the franchise tax board of the state, showing that that body has by unanimous action materially increased the assessment of all the large public service corporations, refuting the reckless charges made by Congressman Owale Stanley that the board had been influenced in behalf of the corporations.

Mr. Rhea also reviews his course in the management of the state's ship upon any legitimate industry. This board, with my active assistance, in the last three years, has increased the franchise valuations upon all the corporations of the state from $14,000,000 to $102,000,000; and four of the largest railroad companies, whose assessments were raised, have enjoined the collection and carried the question into the federal courts, where the cases are now pending for a decision. The favorable settlement of these cases in the courts together with the large increases from other corporations which are not contested, means a great boon to the taxpayers and a most valuable increase in our revenues. In the four years of the present administration the increase of revenues from the assessments of those corporations which have not contested the cases, will amount to a sum to the state far in excess of $1,000,000, and the increase of the franchise, cities, towns and school districts of the state will amount to about $2,000,000 for the same period. Should the courts sustain the action of the board in the cases made upon the four railroad companies I have referred to, it would add about $1,000,000 more revenue to the state and about $2,000,000 more to the counties, cities, towns and school districts in the same four years.

Explains Single Attack.

Notwithstanding my well known record upon the board in these matters and my efforts to serve the best interests of the people by placing a larger and a just burden of taxation upon the corporations, one man alone in all the state has undertaken to criticize me about the work of the board, and to reflect upon my conduct in connection with it. Mr. A. O. Stanley, some time ago, in announcing himself as a candidate for the nomination for governor, with his usual disregard for the truth, made an attack upon me and sought to create the impression that the corporations had been too favorably treated by the board, and that I and other gentlemen he mentioned had in some way been responsible for it. The record and the facts completely disprove the insinuations or charges, and show that no franchises board in the history of Kentucky ever made such large differences in the assessments of corporations as Mr. Stanley can hardly plead ignorance of those facts, because they have been discussed in the press and the courts of the state a great deal in the last two or three years. I am not a candidate for the same office that he is seeking, nor do I propose to descend into a controversy with him and would not now mention him except for his wanton attack upon me. The people of Kentucky have learned to know him as a man utterly reckless and unreliable in his statements or in his charges against other men. The only criticisms that have ever been made about the work of this board have come from those who have complained that we have raised the

A Wonderful Healing Influence In Kidney Troubles.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that caused me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass gravel in urine until I had passed in at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp Root.

CALLED TERM

Of the Breckinridge Fiscal Court Was Held Here in the Court House February 26 and 27.

At a call term of the Breckinridge County Fiscal Court at the Court House in Hardinsburg, Ky., on Friday, February 26th, 1915, object of the meeting to procure State aid for building public roads.

Present, Hon. D. D. Dowell, presiding Judge and the following Justices: W. W. Baxter, Abe Bennett, D. C. Heron, J. J. Keenan and S. D. Cox, being all the Justices of the Peace in commission except C. E. Robbins of the 1st Magisterial District.

The law creating a State road fund and the conditions whereby the county can get its proportionate part under said law and regulations of the department of Public Roads were discussed and explained by Hon. Robt. E. Woods and others, after which court adjourned until 9 o'clock, a.m., February 27, 1915.

Ordered that Court adjourn until tomorrow at 9 o'clock,

D. D. DOWELL, Judge.

At a called term of the Breckinridge County Fiscal Court continued and held in and for Breckinridge county at the Court House in Hardinsburg, Ky., on Saturday, February 27, 1915. Presiding: Hon. D. D. Dowell, presiding Judge, and the following named Justices of the Peace: W. W. Baxter, Abe Bennett, D. C. Heron, J. J. Keenan and S. D. Cox, being all of the Justices of the Peace in commission except C. E. Robbins of the 1st Magisterial District.

On motion of Esq. D. C. Heron, of the Fourth District, seconded by Esq. Abe Bennett, of the Fifth District, and the yes and nay vote being taken, resulted as follows: the following resolution was declared and adopted by the Breckinridge County Fiscal Court:

Be it resolved, that the public interest demands the improvement and reconstruction of a macadamized or metal road on the Hardinsburg and Cloverport turnpike for a distance of about ten miles between the two points, beginning at Harbinburg and running to the corporate limits of the town of Cloverport, it being in a Northwest direction, same being a road connecting the county seat of Breckinridge county with the county seat of Hancock county on the most direct and practicable route.

It appears that the Fiscal Court of Breckinridge County, by order heretofore made a levy and appropriation for the purpose of building, maintaining and repairing the public roads and bridges of said county, in an amount in excess of the amount that may be received by said county from the State of Kentucky, for the purpose of building said macadam road in said county for the coming year of 1915, and have set apart so much of said funds as will amount to the funds that Breckinridge county may receive from the State of Kentucky, not to exceed $5,000 for said purpose.

Now therefore, it is ordered by the Fiscal Court of Breckinridge County, that the Fiscal Court of said county, petition the State of Kentucky and the Commissioner of Public Roads of said State for $5,000 out of its proportionate amount of the State Road Fund that may be available for use in Breckinridge.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES EXPECTED.

Not only the teachers of the State, but the school trustees are expected to attend the Kentucky Educational Association in Louisville April 21 to 24. The State will be divided into four zones, with thirty counties to each zone. The county in each zone which sends the greatest per cent of its trustees, will be given $60 in gold. We should like for the trustees of Breckenridge county to win this prize. They deserve it. School trustees in small towns are never compensated financially and frequently feel their services are unrewarded. However, the thoughtful and considerate patrons of the school appreciate the responsible work of the School Board.

It is an honor and privilege, as well as a responsibility, to serve as a school trustee, and any citizen may be proud of the office. He will find his reward by visiting the primary department of his school where the children are patiently wrestling with their A B C's, and by finding a High School student struggling, while others are playing, to get the education that the public school gives him a chance to obtain. There is untold compensation in that. A cordial welcome is being prepared for the school trustees at the State meeting and one awaits him every day at the school he guides and directs.

COMPLIMENTARY PASSES.

The Breckenridge News has been complimented with passes into the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. They were accompanied by the card of George Hough Perry, director, division of exploitation of the Exposition. A magnificent building has been erected on the Exposition grounds for the convenience of visiting representatives of the Press. This building will be used for the headquarters of publishers and editors during the period from February twentieth to December fourth of this year. In this building many lines of information and interest will be written of the wonders of this fair. Those who do not visit the exposition will always be indebted to the newspaper people, who will furnish them with accounts of the exhibits. The president and board of Directors are not only extending compliments to the press, but they are making it possible for the world to enjoy many interesting articles, by opening the gates free to the people who love to use their pencils and pens.

OVER A MILLION FOR THE BELGIANS.

The Belgian Relief Fund through its agencies have to date received contributions of all kinds amounting to $1,658,676. Of this amount $823,676 was sent to Belgium in cash, the balance in food and clothing. A ship sailed Saturday for Belgium taking relief to 1,500,000 persons who are now depending entirely upon bread lines and soup kitchens for sustenance. Syracuse, New York, sent a car load of groceries. The Belgian Relief Fund of the District of Kentucky, Ohio and Tennessee has received generous contributions for these destitute people. Miss Lalie Henning, president of this Fund, states that under garments are still greatly needed, and material will be sent to those who are willing to sew for the Belgians. The good women of Free, our neighbors and friends, recently made up two bolts of cotton in gowns for Belgian babies.

CLOVERPORT MERCHANTS.

Cloverport merchants who are bringing on new spring goods, should advertise them in order to keep the Easter trade at home. J. C. Nolte & Bro. have already made announcements for Easter and early spring. People like to read in the paper about the stores in Cloverport. We should like to have an ad from every store in town—it would create a fresh interest in Cloverport. People really like to trade with their home merchants, but advertisements and catalogues attract their eye and orders. One cannot go any place and find better kept homes or better dressed people than those in Breckenridge county. This is observed when people get off and on the trains of the different railroads at the depot in Louisville. Our people are good buyers. Are you getting their trade?

BOOST THE GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT.

The good roads movement is on in Breckenridge county and is on in earnest. Let every man and woman in the county get behind it with their money, their work, and their words and influence. It is the greatest movement ever started in this county. It means an up-lift for everybody and everybody will be benefitted. Help our good County Judge and the members of the Fiscal Court, who have inaugurated the movement, and given the people a chance to do something. Don't be a knocker. If you can't say a good word for good roads, say nothing. This movement will spread in time to every nook and corner of Breckenridge county.

$30,227.28 FOR TEACHERS.

J. W. Trent, superintendent of the public schools of Breckenridge county, has received $30,227.28 for the teachers' work for 1914-1915 term. Every draft came on time and it has been a pleasure to superintend the financial part of schools. Teachers, like other people, want to be paid on time. A good man is he who waits uncompromisingly for his salary and works on with the same interest and sincerity until his check comes.

Mr. Babbage is in Hardinsburg every Monday. Don't forget this. He will be there and take care of your wants in the newspaper and printing lines.

So much illness in Cloverport and over the county. We deeply sympathize with those who suffer. Fortunate is the person who stays free from coughs and colds, and keeps a good disposition.

If you want a Good Roads education, write to the Department of Public Roads, Frankfort, for Bulletin, No. 3.

The Faithful Kentucky Goose.

The people of Hartford were very much amused Wednesday afternoon when Mr. C. B. Sullenger came up town followed by a goose. Mr. Sullenger entered several stores and other places of business and "everywhere that Charlie went the goose was sure to go." The fowl talked continually to herself and followed right at the heels of Mr. Sullenger at all times. Sullenger says that every time he comes up town "Miss Lucy" wants to follow him and it is necessary to drive her back. He says he doesn't like the idea of a darn goose taking up with him.—Hartford Republican.

The Million Dollar Mystery

CHAPTER XII.

A drowsy chanty, if you please; of sailors in jerseys and tarry caps, of rolling gait, strong tobacco and diverse profanity; of cutters, and blunt-nose schooners, and tramps, canvas and steam, some of them honest, some of them shady, and some of them pirates of the first water who did not find it necessary to hoist aloft the skull and bones. The seas are dotted with them. They remind you of the once prosperous merchant, run down at the heel, who slinks along the side streets, ashamed to meet those he knew in the past. You never hear them mentioned in the maritime news, which is the society column of the ships; you know of their existence only by the bleached bones of them, strewn along the coast.

You who crave adventures on high seas, you purchase a ticket, a steamer chair, and a couple of popular novels, go on board to the blare of a very indifferent brass band, and believe you are adventuring; when, as a matter of fact, you are about to spend a dull week or fortnight on a water hotel, where the most exciting thing is the bugle's call to meals or the discovery of a card sharp in the smoking room. Take a real ship, go as supercargo, to the South seas; take the side streets of the ocean, and learn what it can do with hurricanes, typhoons, blistering calms, and men's souls. There will be adventure enough then. If you are a weakling, either you are made strong, or you die.

An honest ship, but run down at the heel, rode at anchor in the sound, a fourth-rater of the hooker breed; that is, her principal line of business was hauling barges up and down the coast. When she could not pick up enough barges to make it pay, why, she'd go gallivanting down to Cuba for bales of tobacco or even to the Bermudas for the heaven smelling onion.

Today she was an onion ship; which precludes any idea of adventure. She was about four thousand tons, and her engines were sternward and not amidships. She carried two masts and half dozen hoist booms, and the only visible sign of anything new on her was her bowsprit. This was new doubtless, because she had poked her nose too far into her last ship.

Her crew was orderly and tractable. There were shore drunks, to be sure, because they were sailors; but they were at work. They moved about briskly, for they were on the point of sailing for the Bahamas—perhaps for more onions. Presently the windlass creaked and shrieked, and the blobby links, much in need of tar paint, red as fish gills, clattered down into the bow. Sometimes they painted the chain as it came over; but paint was costly, and this was done only when the anchor threatened to stay on the bottom.

There was a sailor among this crew, and he went by the name of Steve Blossom; and he was one of his kind. A grimy dime novel protruded rakishly from his hip pocket, and his right cheek was swollen as with the toothache, due, probably, to a generous "caw" of Seaman's Delight. He was a real tobacco ebeyer, for he rarely spat. He was as peaceful as a backwater bay in summer; non-argumentative and passive, be stood his watch in fair weather and foul.

No one gave the anchor any more attention after it came to rest. The great city over the way was fairy-like in its basiness and softened lines. It was the poetry of angles, of shafts and spars of stone; and Steve Blossom, having a moment to himself, leaned against the rail and stared regretfully. He had been generously drunk the night before, and it was a pleasant recollection. Chance led his glance to trail down the cutwater. His neck stretched from his collar like a turtle's from its shell.

"Well, I'll be hornsoggled!" he murmured, shifting his end from starboard to port.

Caught on the fluke of the anchor was the strangest looking box he had ever laid eyes on. There were leather and steel bands and diamond-shaped ivory and mother of pearl, and it hung jauntily on the point of the rusty fluke. Anybody would be hornsoggled to glimpse such a droll jest of fate. On the fluke of the old mudhook, by a hair, you might say. In all the wild sea yards he had ever read or heard there was nothing to match this.

Treasure!

And Steve was destined never to be passive again. His first impulse was to call his companions; his second impulse was to say nothing at all, and wait for an opportunity to get the box to his bunk without being detected. Treasure! Diamonds and rubies and pearls and old Spanish gold; all hanging to the fluke of the anchor.

"Hornsoggled!" in a kind of awe-some whisper this time. "An' we aheadin' for th' Bahamas!" For under his feet he could hear the rhythm of engines. "What'll I do? If I leave it, some one else'll see it." He scratched his chin perplexedly; and the end went back to starboard. "I got it!" He took off his coat and carefully dropped it down over the mysterious box. It was growing darker and darker all the time, and shortly neither coat nor anchor would be visible without close scrutiny. Treasure; greed, cupidity, crime. Steve saw only the treasure and not its camp followers. What did they call them?—doubloons and pieces-of-eight?

He ate his supper with his messmates, and he ate heartily as usual. It would have taken something more vital than mere treasure to disturb Steve Blossom's appetite. He was one of those enviable individuals whose imagination and gastric juices work at the same time. And while he ate planned. In the first place, he would buy that home at Bedford; then he would take over the Gilson house and live like a lord. If he wanted a drink, all he would have to do would be to turn the spigot or tip a bottle; and more than that, he'd have a bartender to do it. Onions! He swore he would not have an onion within a mile of the Gilson house. "Onions!" Quite unconsciously he spoke this word aloud.

"Eh? Well, if ye don't like onions, find a hooker that packs violets in her hold," was the cheerful advice of the man at Steve's elbow.

"Who's talkin' t' you?" grunted Steve. "Wha' did I say?"

"Onions, ye lubber! Don't we know what onions is? Ain't we smell 'em so long that ye could stick yer nose in th' starboard light an' never smell no kerosene? Onions! Pass th' t'awfay."

Steve helped himself first. The man who spoke bunked over him, and they were not on the best of terms. There was no real reason for this frank antagonism; simply, they did not splice any more effectually than cotton rope and hemp splice. Sailors are moody and superstitious; at least they generally are on hookers of the "Captain Manners" breed. Steve was superstitious and Jim Dunkers was moody and had no thumb on his left hand. Steve hated the sight of that red nubbin. He was quite certain that it had been a whole thumb once, on the way to gouge out somebody's eye, and had inadvertently connected with somebody's teeth.

Spanish doubloons and pearls and diamonds and rubies! It was mighty hard not to say these words out loud, too; blare them into the sulter faces grouped around the table. He was off watch till midnight; and he was wondering if he could get the box without attracting the attention of the lookout, who had a devilish keen eye for everything that stirred on deck or on water. Well, he would have to risk it; but he would wait till full darkness had fallen over the sea and the lookout would be compelled to keep his eyes off the deck. The boys wanted him to play cards.

"Not for me. Busted. How long d' y' think $40'll last in New York, anyhow?" And he stalked out of the forecastle and went down into the waist to enjoy his evening pipe, all the while keeping a weather eye forward, at the ratty old pilot house.

It was ten o'clock, land time, when he rammed his cutty into a pocket and resolutely walked forward. If any one watched him they would think he was only looking down the cutwater. The thought of money and the pressures it will buy makes cunning the stupiddest of doits; and Steve was ordinarily a doit. But tonight his brain was keen enough for all purposes. It was a hazardous job to get the box off the fluke without letting it slip back into the sea. Steve, however, accomplished the feat, climbed back on the rail and sat down waiting. A quarter or an hour passed. No one had seen him. With his coat securely wrapped about his precious find he made for the forecastle. His mates, save those who were doing their watch, were all in their bunks.

An oil lamp dimly illuminated the forward partition. Steve's bunk was almost in darkness. Very deftly he rolled back the bedding and secreted the box under his pillows, and then stretched himself out with the pretense of snoozing till the bell called him to duty.

He was rich; and the moment a man has money he has troubles; there is always some one who wants to take it away from you. His bunk was on the port side, and there was plenty of hiding space between the iron plates and the wooden partition. He intended to loosen three or four planks, and then when the time came, slip the box behind them. Some time during the morning the forecastle would be empty, and then would be his time.

But he suffered the agonies of damnation during the four hours' watch. Supposing some fool should go rummaging about his bunk and discover the box? Suppose . . . But he dared not suppose. There was nothing to do but wait. If he crept any curiosity on the part of his mates he was lost. He would have to divide with them all, from the captain down to the cook's boy. It was a heart-rending thought. From being the most open and frank man aboard, he became the most cowering. From being a man without that there was no such word as arbitration in a sailor's vocabulary; his disputes could be settled only in one manner, by his calloused fists.

When the old mudhook (and some day Steve was going to buy it and hang it over the entrance of the Gilson house) slithered down into the smiling waters of the bay, Steve concluded that discretion was the better part of valor. He would steal ashore on the quarantine tug which lay alongside. He was willing to fight under ordinary circumstances, but he must get his treasure in safety first. They could call him a weicher if they wanted to; devil a bit did he care. So he pried back the boards of his bunk wall, took out the box, eyed it fondly, and noted for the first time the lettering on it:

STANLEY HARGREAVE.

He wrinkled his brow in the effort to recall a pirate by this name, but was unsuccessful. No matter. He hugged the box under his coat and made for the gangway, and inadvertently ran into his enemy.

Dunkers caught a bit of the box peeping from under the coat.

"What 'a' yuh got there?" he demanded truculently.

"None of your damn business! You lemme by; hear me?"

"Ain't none o' my business, huh? Where'd yuh git a box like that? Steal it? By cripes, I'm goin' t' have a look at that box, my hearty. It don't smell like honest onions."

"You lemme by!" breathed Steve, with murder in his heart.

Suddenly the two men closed, surged back and forth, one determined to take and the other to hold this mysterious box. Dunkers struggled to uphold his word; not that he really wanted the box but to prove that he was strong enough to take it if he wanted to. The name on the box flashed and disappeared. It was a kind of shock to him. He and Blossom went battering against the rail. Dunkers' grip slipped and so did Blossom's. The result was that the box was catapulted into the sea. With an agonizing cry, Blossom leaned far over. He saw the box oscillate for a moment, then sink gracefully in a zigzag course, down through the blue water. Falmer and falmer it grew, and at last vanished.

"I'm sorry, Steve; but yuh wouldn't let me look at it," said Dunkers, contritely.

"Dann you; I'm goin' t' kill y' for that!"

It became a real fight this time, fist and foot, tooth and nail; one mad with the lust to kill and the other desperately intent on living. It was one of those contests in which honor and fair play have no part. But for the timely arrival of the captain and some of the crew Dunkers would have been badly injured, perhaps fatally. They hauled back Blossom, roaring out his caths at the top of his lungs. It took half an hour's arguing to calm him down. Then the captain demanded to know what it was all about. And blubbering, Steve told him.

"Six hundred feet of water, if I've got my reckoning right. The anchor lies in 60 feet, but the starboard side drops sheer 600. You swab! Why didn't you bring the box to me? A man has a right to what he finds. I'd have taken care of it for you till we got back to port. I know; you were greedy; you thought I might want to stick my fist into your treasure. And you'll never find it in 600 feet of water and tangled, porous coral. That's what you get for being a blamed hog. As for you," and the captain turned to Dunkers, "get your dunnage and your pay and hunt for another boat back. I won't have no murder on board 'Cap-

And Vroom knew that the one thing he wanted was there, a plan or a drawing of the range. So there was another man shanghaied that night, and his destination was Cape Town, 22 days' voyage by the calendar.

Vroom carried his information to the organization that same night. They would start the expedition at once, and till this was accomplished, Hargreave's daughter was to be immune from attacks. Beside, it would give Hargreave (wherever he was) and the others the idea that the Black Hundred had concluded to give up the chase.

Above, with his ear to a small hole, skillfully bored through the ceiling without permitting the plaster to fall, knelt a man with a bandaged arm. He could never see any faces; no one ever took off a mask in this sinister chamber. But there were voices, and he was going to forget some of them. After the meeting came to an end, he waited an hour after, and then stole down into the street by the aid of the fire escape. Later, he entered a telephone booth and called up Jones.

Then, one leather and steel box, dotted with bits of ivory and mother-of-pearl, became two; and the second one was soaked in mud and salt water for two weeks till you could not have told it from the original. And that is why Jones was able, some weeks later, to hide once more the original box.

As for the substitute, just as Braine was about to use a mallet and chisel upon it, the lights went out. There was a wild scramble, a chair or two was overturned.

"The door, the door!" shouted Braine, furiously.

It slammed the moment the words left his lips. And as suddenly as they had gone out the lights sprang up. The box was gone. There were evidently traitors among the Black Hundred.

Blossom had not thought so. The name Hargreave had instantly brought back to Dunkers' mind the newspaper stories he had recently read. There was no doubt in the world that this box belonged to the missing millionaire, who had drawn a million from his bank and vanished; and, moreover, there was no doubt in Dunkers' mind that this million lay in the Bahaman waters. It had been drawn up from the bottom of the sound, under the path of the balloon. He proceeded, then, to take a most minute range. It would require money and partners; but half a loaf would be far better than no loaf at all; and he was determined to return to New York to find backing. Finding is keeping, on land or sea.

Now it happened that his favorite grog shop was a cheap saloon across the way from the headquarters of the Black Hundred; and Vroom occasionally dropped in, for he often picked up a valuable bit of maritime news. Dunkers was an old friend of the barkeeper, and he proceeded to pour and guzzle down his throat a very poor substitute for whisky. He became communicative. He bragged. He knew where there was a million, and all he needed was a first-class diving bell. A year from now he would not be drinking cheap whisky; he'd be steering a course up and down Broadway and buying wine when he was thirsty. He was no miser. But he had to have a diving bell; and where the blue devil could he get one with $12 and an Ingersoll watch in his pocket?

From his table Vroom made a sign which the bartender understood. Then he rose and approached Dunkers.

"I own a pretty good diving apparatus," he said. "If you've got the goods, I'll take a chance on a fifty-fifty basis." Vroom did not believe there was anything back of his talk; but it always paid to dig deep enough to find out. "Have a drink; and Bill, give us a real whisky and none of your soap-lye. Now, let's hear your yarn."

"I don't know yuh," said Dunkers, with drunken caution. "How is it, Bill?" turning to the bartender.

"He's the goods, Jim. You've heard of Wyant & Co.?"

"Sure I've heard o' them. Best divin' app'ratus they is."

"Well, this gent here is Mr. Brooks, general manager for Wyant & Co. I can O. K. him."

Vroom threw an appreciative glance at the bartender. He was not affiliated with the Black Hundred, but he had often aided Vroom in minor affairs.

"All right, if yuh say so, Bill. Well, here's th' yarn."

And when he had done, Vroom smoked quietly without speaking.

"Don't yuh believe it?" demanded Dunkers, trueulently.

"But 600 feet of water, in a coral bottom, and no way of tellin' just where it fell overboard. That's a tough proposition."

"O, it is, is it? I'm a sailor. I can lay my hand right over th' spot. Do yuh think I'd be fool enough t' hunt for it without a perfect range?" Dunkers tapped his coat pocket suggestively.

And Vroom knew that the one thing he wanted was there, a plan or a drawing of the range. So there was another man shanghaied that night, and his destination was Cape Town, 22 days' voyage by the calendar.

Vroom carried his information to the organization that same night. They would start the expedition at once, and till this was accomplished, Hargreave's daughter was to be immune from attacks. Beside, it would give Hargreave (wherever he was) and the others the idea that the Black Hundred had concluded to give up the chase.

As for the substitute, just as Braine was about to use a mallet and chisel upon it, the lights went out.

"Keep your mouth shut," said the mate, "or I'll have you put in irons, you pig!"

"All right sir. I've said all I'm goin' t' say t' day," and Blossom strode off.

"What was the box like?" asked the captain of Dunkers.

"Chinese contraption, sir; leastwise it looked that way to me. Didn't look as if it'd been in th' water long, sir. Somethin' lost overboard by some private yacht, t' my thinkin'. I'll keep out o' Steve's way. I'll lay low on shore, sir."

And though Steve made a perfect range of the spot, he never came back to find the mysterious box, never did the Gilson house back home, nor did he ever see Dunkers again. On the voyage home he brooded continually, and was frequently found blubbering; and one night he skipped his watch and went to Davy Jones' locker.

Dunkers had not told about the name he had seen on the box; and

LOW ROUND TRIP RATES AFFORD GREATEST OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME TO TAKE WONDERFUL JOURNEY AND SEE FINEST DISPLAYS OF WORLD'S NATIONS

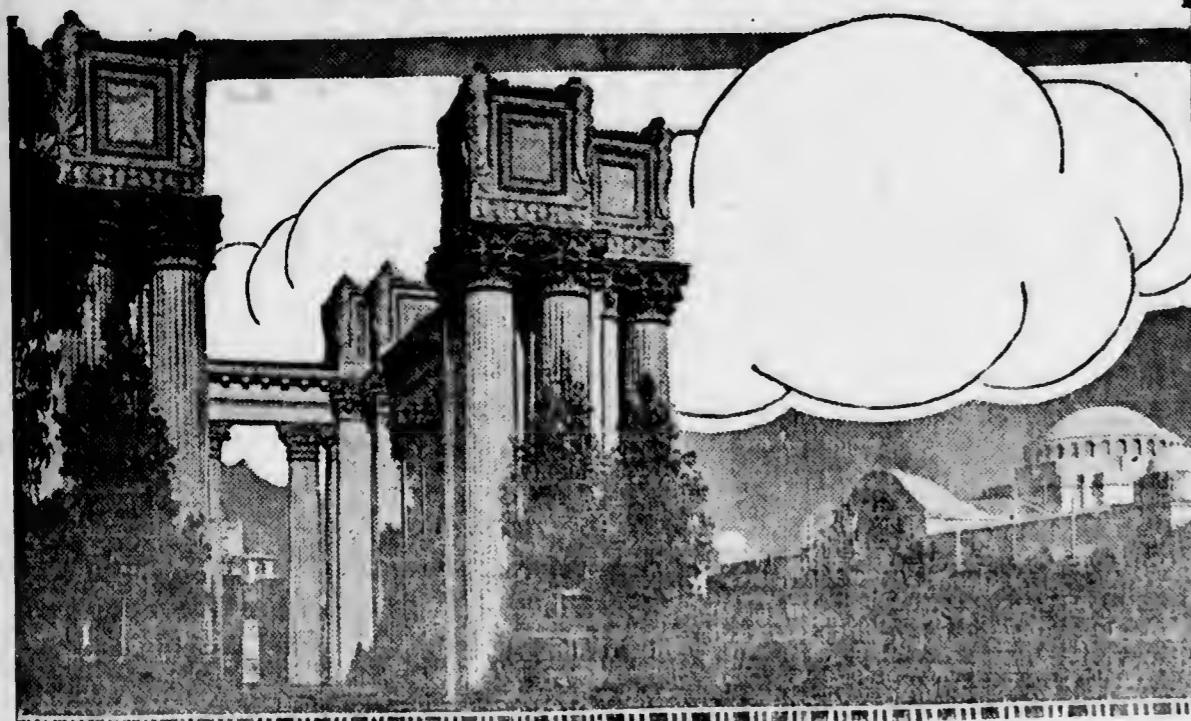

These pictures at best can indicate but feebly the indecible marvels presented by the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco to which the people of all nations are thronging.

Forty-two foreign nations, and more than 80,000 individual exhibitors, representing every country on the globe, have sent to this wonderful $50,000,000 show the best of their present-day achievements which are now displayed in eleven colossal exhibit palaces and also in the buildings of the state and foreign group, the latter structures being built in most cases in a style of architecture characteristic of the state or nation represented. More than $10,000,000 has been invested in the "Zone," the 3,000-foot amusement street of this great fair, where the world's premier showmen are conducting the most wonderful and most original sight-seeing and pure-fun attractions ever assembled for any celebration on earth.

In order to put the opportunity of seeing this most marvelous of all expositions within reach of the greatest number of people the railroads have cut rates in half to and from San Francisco, and the hotel and restaurant associations of the city have agreed to keep their schedule of prices down to normal figures.

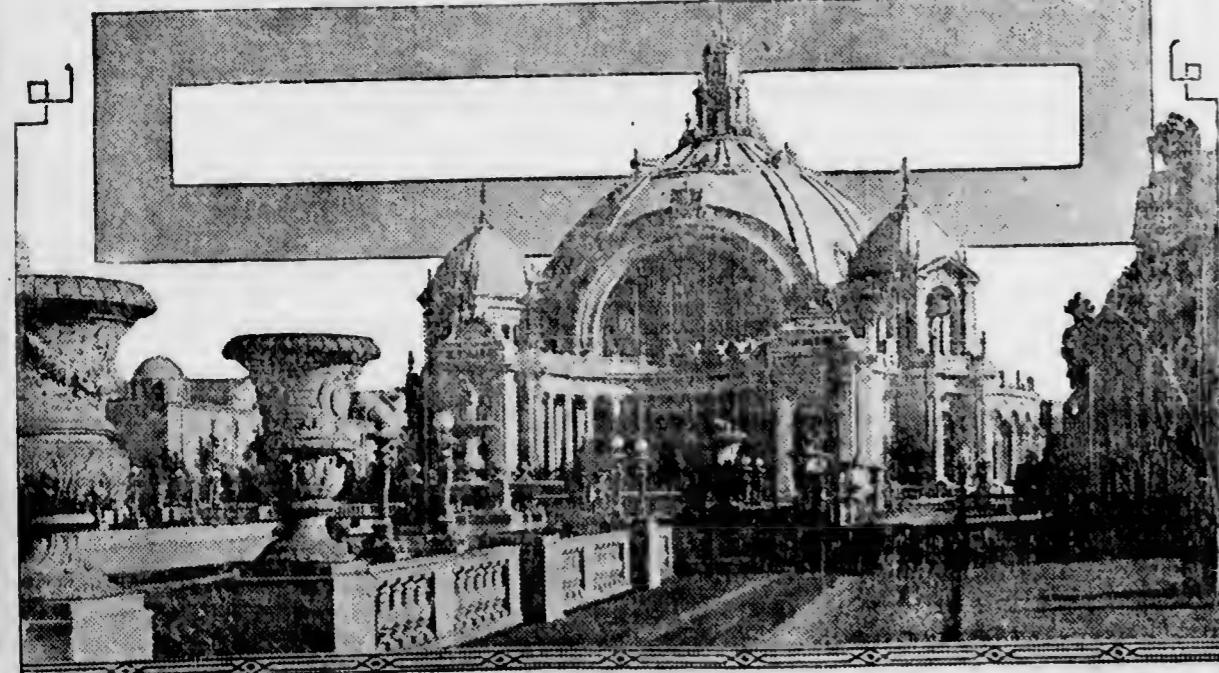

Complete information regarding this wonderful world's fair may be had free for the asking by addressing Manager of the Bureau of Publications, Press Building, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, California, who will forward to any address a beautiful sixty-page booklet, illustrated in colors, containing detailed information regarding the glories of this great celebration and a complete description of the Panama Canal.

SYMPTOMS

Slight Symptoms Sometimes Presage Serious Results.

Do you feel tired, have you a sallow complexion, constipation, headache, bad breath, sleeplessness or circles around your eyes? If so, you are undoubtedly suffering from some liver complaint.

Perhaps you don't feel very badly now, but delay is dangerous. To allow your liver to continue out of order, is to invite a serious chronic illness.

Whenever you have the slightest symptoms of liver trouble, stop it immediately. You can do it harmlessly and mildly by taking LIV-VER LAX, the natural vegetable compound that is replacing calomel everywhere. It has all the effectiveness, not the effect of calomel. Insist on getting the original LIV-VER LAX, bearing the likeness and signature of L. K. Grigsby, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by Kiachoe's Pharmacy.
